EDITORIAL

Stephen Muzhingi has not come close to the time run more than 20 years ago by former record holder Bruce Fordyce for the "up" run of the Comrades Marathon – not to mention the current course record of 5:24:47 by Leonid Shvetsov – but the Zimbabwean is now a member of a very exclusive club after winning the Comrades for the third time in a row yesterday. Only four other men – Fordyce, with eight victories on the trot, Arthur Newton (4), Dave Bagshaw and Alan Robb – have triumphed three times in succession.

Muzhingi (35) overcame South Africa's Fanie Matshipa (33) in a tough, no-holds-barred battle over the second half of the 86th Comrades to win in 5:32:46. He also won the previous two races, both "down" from Pietermaritzburg to Durban.

Matshipa finished second in 5:34:30 – faster even than the 5:39:53 that brought him fourth place in the 2010 down run.

In the women's race it was business as usual as none of the top-class international ultramarathon runners in the field had the courage to challenge the Nurgalieva twins. Elena grabbed her sixth win in 6:24:11 after falling early in the race, with sister Olesya second in 6:24:36. Farwa Mentoor in fifth (her third in a row) was once again the top South African finisher.

Kami Semick (USA), fourth in 2009 almost 20 minutes behind the twins, this time was third – less than 2 minutes behind Olesya – and again looked as fresh as a daisy. It seems incredible that a runner of her stature – she was the world 100 km champion in 2009, with the world's fastest time for that year – does not throw down the gauntlet to the Nurgalievas; she certainly has the ability to win if she decides to put pressure on them from early on. Of course, the same also goes for Britons Ellie Greenwood, the current world 100 km champion, and Elizabeth Hawker, third in the IAU World 100 km Championship.

Seven South African men (not eight, as the TV broadcast stated) won gold medals, one fewer than in the last two years.

The first half of the race was very quick and it was inevitable that the tempo would slow down later. The only slower times than Muzhingi's in the past eight up runs were Alberto Salazar's in 1994 and Oleg Kharitonov's in 2006. No doubt a detail like this does not bother Muzhingi in any way – he has now shown that, like Fordyce and, more recently, Shvetsov, he can win in both directions.

Mncedisi Mkhize took the last gold medal in 5:51:18 – with the exception of 2008 the slowest since 1994 for this position.

Apart from Muzhingi the other foreigners who made the top ten were Swedish star Jonas Buud, who was second in last year's World 100 km Championship and won the European title over this distance, and Zimbabwean Chasara Masiyatsva, who was twelfth in the Om die Dam 50 km in March, where he ran 3:07:21. Buud was only 20th at halfway, but covered the last 8 km to the finish slightly faster than even Muzhingi.

Point Chaza (ZIM) reached halfway in 2:36:20, almost 2½ minutes faster than Charles Tjiane did in the last up run. Muzhingi and his group were almost 8½ minutes behind. Far back, in 20th position, was Buud, while American Michael Wardian was 24th, Gift Kelehe 37th, Brian Zondi 43rd and, unnoticed in 46th, came Masiyatsva. The latter was almost 15 minutes behind the leader, but all of them would make an impact later as the early front runners fell victim to the hills.

Muzhingi and Matshipa went into the lead with 32 km to go and raced across Harrison Flats shoulder to shoulder, giving no quarter – Muzinghi powerfully built with strong shoulders and upper body and Matshipa much smoother, with an almost effortless running style. They traded surges after Matshipa had sprinted ahead to win the third hot spot and then, just before the climb up "Little Polly's", the 2010 champion had had enough and decided it was time to go.

Every Comrades has at least one very dramatic moment, often one that decides the outcome. The 2011 moment came at the outskirts of Pietermaritzburg, with the clock showing 5:14. Muzhingi suddenly came to a stop, although not showing any signs of distress. He walked a few metres and then resumed running almost as strongly as before.

Later he would say, "I just wanted to release my muscles", adding that it made him run better afterwards.

He covered the 4 km from 8 km to 4 km to go, which included part of the climb up Polly's, in 16:17, with the last 4 km taking him 15:37. Behind him eight of the nine gold medals were set, with only veteran Elias Mabane losing a place in the top ten in the last 8 km.

Muzhingi, who had said before the race, "I haven't won the up run. There is no pressure on me", ran untroubled to the finish, winning by 1:44. He said the fast pace between Ashburton and Polly Shorts cost him the record. "It was very tough up Polly's and then I realised the record was out of my reach." He said he usually takes four months off after the Comrades and then starts his training again in September.

Matshipa, who said he had had a cold the previous week, showed a huge improvement on his last up run result: he was 263rd in 2008 (and failed to finish in 2007). The South African promised to return next year to win.

Muzhingi has also showed great improvement in his Comrades career: before his three wins he had finished 115th, 51st, 7th and 3rd. Keen observers of the race are already talking about a new Fordyce-like era, although the Zimbabwean is ten years older than Fordyce when he got his first victory.

Buud had passed Kelehe, younger brother of 2001 winner Andrew Kelehe, for fourth, while sixth went to unheralded Masiyatsva (33). There was a big gap to Mamabolo, grandson of the great Titus Mamabolo, in seventh. Tjiane, who was only 22nd at halfway, was eighth while Zondi, who was second in 2006, claimed ninth. Mkhize, a far back 42nd at halfway, took the last gold, while Wardian, 25th last year (and then third in the World 100 km), gained one place in the last 200 m to miss a gold medal by one position.

Unlike in the Two Oceans, the Nurgalievas were never challenged. Elena's winning time is the slowest for the up run since Rae Bisschoff, the last South African to win, ran 6:38:57 in 1998 and a far cry from the record of 6:09:24 she set in 2006.

Mentoor has now been the best South African for nine of the last ten years (not nine in a row, as one newspaper report said) and finished in the top five on seven of those occasions, a remarkable record.

The "King of the Comrades", Fordyce, missed a silver medal by 31 seconds in his 29th Comrades. Former triple up run champion Vladimir Kotov (BLR), who was aiming for a gold medal, had to be content with a finish position equal to his age (53) – between the Nurgalieva twins – but again won the masters (50-59) category.

DRR contributor Sharon Eldridge became only the third woman after Ann Margolin and Almerie Jansen van Vuuren to win twenty medals in both the Two Oceans and Comrades when she finished 552nd in 10:14:32. DRR subscriber Elaine Greenblatt was the first grandmaster, finishing in 9:33:02.

Not much can be said about the disappointing TV coverage that was not said already last year. The coverage was haphazard, with so little shown about the athletes behind the front runners – in this case Muzhingi and Matshipa, and the twins – that it was impossible to get a coherent picture of what was going on. Errors abounded, such as that Fordyce won the race nine times in a row, and the screen showing "Nurgallerva" at one stage, while some of the commentators still can't get the Nurgalievas' first names correct. South Africa's biggest race – and the viewers – certainly deserve better.

With the US Race Results Weekly only being published tomorrow, we will catch up with international results next week.

NEWS

WHEN A JUNIOR SUDDENLY TURNS 23

The problem of the age of junior athletes has become the scourge of distance running over the last few years, and many juniors – and, to a lesser extent, also runners in the older age groups such as veterans and masters – have been caught when running as juniors while they in fact no longer belonged in this age category. The problem is probably much more widespread than generally believed.

The latest culprit is Siyabonga Makhaluza, a "junior" running for the Western Province club Easterns. He has been active in the province for a few years and there has been suspicion about his real age for some time.

Distance Running Results has now obtained a copy of his identity document and it turns out that he is really 23 years old (almost 24) – which means that he has been running illegally as a junior for the last $4\frac{1}{2}$ years! He was born on 24 June 1987.

Last year he actually gave his age as 17 when he entered races!

Thus Makhaluza has been earning a considerable amount of prize money to which he was not entitled. Here is a list of his races for this year only, with his position in the junior category:

A LOOK BACK AT OLD TIMES

Well-known coach and athletes' manager Dewald Steyn has confirmed that the Joe Bellingham whose name appeared in the results (grandmasters category) of the AGN cross-country league meeting in DRR 11:20 is the well-known marathon and cross-country runner of the sixties and seventies.

Bellingham was the second South African (after Ferdie le Grange) to run a sub-2:20 marathon when he won the now defunct Stellenbosch Marathon in 2:18:05 in 1973. Bellingham, who was born on 1 January 1946, also won the SA marathon title in 1968, clocking 2:27:24 in Germiston. He was second at the 1968 SA Cross-country Championships behind Fanie van Zijl and was a member of the SA cross-country team that competed in Zimbabwe in both 1967 and 1968. Bellingham set two SA records in 1969 – 49:07.6 for 10 miles and 19 640 m for one hour, in the same race on 12 February in Germiston.

According to Steyn, he got Bellingham to start running again about a year ago and because of his long absence from running he has been struggling with injuries and "battles to get fit". He is "very enthusiastic" and his aim is to get Gauteng North colours.

The photographs sent to DRR by Steyn show Bellingham as he looks now, and the cross-country team to Zimbabwe in 1967. Back row: Tony Frost, Dave Kirby, Issy Marks, John Atkinson and Sonny van Antwerp. Front row: Bellingham, Dennis Morrison, Steyn and Louis van Wijck.

STATS TIME

In this section I include the top ten South Africans over the standard distances in 2011 each week, with one list per issue. Secondary performances of the top three are also listed. As the list is extracted directly from my database, it may not yet include performances shown in results elsewhere in this issue, or in the last issue.

THIS MONTH IN HISTORY

This weekly column highlights a special race or event from the past that happened in the current month.

40 years ago: 22 May 1971

Ed Cadena won the 5th edition of the Palos Verdes Marathon by exactly four minutes over Phil Ryan (USA), 2:23:34 to 2:27:34. Mitch Kingery, only 14, was 14th with 2:39:43, while at the other end of the age scale the 64-year-old Monty Montgomery was 39th in 2:53:53. An even younger runner, 12-year-old Mary Decker, ran 3:09:27 to win the women's race. Decker would later become famous as one of the best distance runners in the world, setting numerous US track records and winning the 1983 global 3000-metre title. And, of course, she tangled with Zola Budd in the 1984 Olympic final.

SOUTH AFRICAN ROAD LIST LEADERS FOR 2011

This section lists this year's best South African performance for each of the age categories over the distances recognised by the IAAF for record purposes. Note that the categories are not closed as is the practice in SA races, i.e. athletes are included in younger age categories if their times qualify. Changes from the previous list are shown in red. Please send me any amendments. World leaders are shown in the senior category, on a grey background. World records are shown in green. – Ed.
